The French Elections. The Republicans have succeeded in electing a majority of the deputies to the French Chamber, and the government, as they would say in England, is not sustained in its policy of May last-vizdissolving the Chamber with a view of securing a majority of the membership by means of a new election, and thus har moniting the legislative branch of the government with the new Ministry formed just before the dissolution.

Our readers will recollect that Me Mahon all at once changed his ministry called Conservative basis. The Republiand dissolved the Chamber, hoping there-

McMahon is what may be called a "strong government" man. It is, perhaps, tionist against the present order of things. He leans to the old order the "ancient regime" and identifies his career as a soldier with the Second Empire. He is tooked upon with great favor by the ex Empress, and also by the Orleanists, to whom he has been kind. The Bonrbon family, however, is not supposed to empire any special countenance from him.

Opposed to McMahon, although they made him President for seven years, (to succeed Thiers) is the radical Republican element. The Republican strength before the dissolution was 363 deputies against all types and shades of opposition This strength was not all radical. There publican party (or Democratic, for that matter,) has its two wings. However, against reaction towards Monarchy question now is, will McMahon combat the verdict of the people? Gam-"General Grant is not so taciturn at all times as the world generally supposes. Months simply embodied the English idea and practice. When a British Ministry goes to the country on an issue, and is not sustained, the Queen at once forms a new Ministry from the opposition. She sends for the recognized leader, as she did for Palmerston when Gladstone was secently defeated, and tells him to form a ministry conformable to public sentiment. This feature of their government the mount of their money."

"General Grant is not so taciturn at all times as the world generally supposes. More thanks as the world ment. An Associated Press dispatch says that the election in France for members of the Chamber of Deputies passed off quietly, no disturbance having been reported up to 3½ o'clock this morning.

A dispatch of this morning says that the returns from 373 arrondissements show the election of 248 Republicans and 117 MacMahonites. In eight arrondissements a second ballot will be required. Thus far the Republicans lose thirty seats and gain fourteen. Among the Deputies elected are Gambetta, Grevy, Paul De Cassagnac and Louis Blanc.

The following additional names have been received: Gerry, Moderate Republican, from Beancon; Bonnet Luverdier, now in prison for libelling MacMahon, from Paris on Place; Pascal Dasarat, Moderate Republican; Rouker, Bonapartist, from Riom, Richard Waddington, Moderate Republican, irom Rouen, re-elected, defeating the Government candidate, Delamerre; Baron Houssmann, Bonapartist, from Ajaccio, defeating Prince Napoleon. Gambetta was elected by 23,872 votes against 1,611 for his onponent. Prince Napoleon. Gambetta was elected by 23,872 votes against 1,611 for his
